BELOVED SCHOOL CHIEF NAILED FOR SOLICITING SEX WITH A 10-YEAR-OLD GIRL!

GRANDFATHERLY school superintendent Charles Deasy had a chilling sinister side, cops say.

By JACK ALEXANDER / Staff writer

School superintendent Charles Deasy had a grandfatherly way with kids, but a dark side of the old man was revealed — when cops say they caught him trying to buy sex from a 10-year-old girl.

And it wasn't the first time Chicago police had taken Deasy, 59, to the policy for messing with little kids.

Earlier this year, he pleaded guilty to indecent solicitation involving a 12-year-old girl and an 8-year-old boy and was placed under court supervision for 18 months.

"It's frightening when you realize this man has been in total control of 450 elementary age kids during school hours for the past eight years in Wonder Lake (Ill.)," said one alarmed parent.

Deasy was arrested by an undercover cop posing as a mother trying to peddle her 10-year-old daughter for sex on the north side of Chicago.

The likable school chief, who "high-fived" students in the hallways and showed special interest in the achievers, was suspended and later retired as the $92,500-a-year district superintendent. He faces a public hearing in Chicago on the indecent solicitation charge.

"He was a fine outstanding person, a person I trusted with my kids," said former school board member Derek Hampton.

"There was no shadow of any kind of problems that he is experiencing now."

Beat cancer — by being happy!

Folks with a rosy outlook on life have less chance of getting certain types of cancer than physically fit complainers, says a startling new medical study.

A positive attitude appears to promote natural killer-cell activity for fighting disease in some cancer patients as well as healthy individuals.

"It doesn't seem to be so much whether one is exposed to stress or not, but how people are reacting to similar types of stress," said Dr. Ronald Herberman.

Researchers have discovered that colon and skin cancer patients who combine standard medical care with psychotherapy have higher natural-killer-cell activity than those who aren't in counseling.

People with positive outlooks have high- or natural killer-cell activity than complainers, says another study at Johns Hopkins University.

The upbeat subjects suffered fewer colds and other viral infections.

THE WORLD'S BIGGEST BRAT IS BACK

KID TERROR Lizzie Clark was the title of World's Biggest Brat in 1989 — at the tender age of 4.

She scratched the words 'Wash Me!' on daddy's new Caddy!

She 'lit' candy cigarettes with $100 bills she stole from mom!

She blew up the toilet in her parents' bathroom!

...and she's meaner than ever!

By CARRIE CRAMER
Special correspondent

The World's Biggest Brat is back!

This time cute little Lizzie Clark blew a toilet off its foundation with a cherry bomb, watered her mother's prized orchids with lighter fluid — and called the White House 167 times in a crazed bid to reach First Daughter Chelsea Clinton!

Incredibly, there's a lot more, in the past six months alone, the 8-year-old girl, who first made international headlines by winning a toy company's Biggest Brat Contest back in white and blue for Memorial Day!

DOTING MOM Miriam Clark

the words "Wash Me!" on the trunk of her father's new Cadillac!

● "Lit" candy cigarettes with three $100 bills she snatched from her mother's purse!

● Made 167 long distance calls to the White House, demanding to speak with Chelsea Clinton!

● Painted her nagging mother's legs red, white and blue for Memorial Day!

● Destroyed guests' and friends' books worth $500 by unplugging the family freezer before they left on vacation!

● Watered her mother's prize orchids with lighter fluid!

● Blew the toilet in her parents' bath off its foundation with a powerful cherry bomb firecracker!

MEET THE WORLD'S BIGGEST BRAT!

LIZZIE first appeared in the Sept 5, 1989 issue of the NEWS.

● Knocked her dad out cold by beaning him with a 12-ounce can of tomato soup while playing cops and robbers!

"If she was 16 or 17 I'm sure I'd punish her. But she's just a child and all this mischief is a stage she's going through. One of these days we'll sit back and laugh about the crazy things she does.

"Meanwhile, it's something we have to overlook. I wouldn't dream of punishing her or laying a hand on her."

Lizzie's dad is as easygoing as her mother. He calls the little girl "the apple of my eye" — and says he couldn't imagine losing his temper with her.

"I grabbed her for using matches to light those $100 bills and the cherry bomb but that's about it," he said. "There's something about Lizzie that makes you want to go along with her.

"She's got spunk, sure, and a mind of her own. But there's not a mean bone in her body. She's an angel in disguise."

Lizzie couldn't agree more. When a reporter asked her if she enjoyed being the World's Biggest Brat, she shoved a yo-yo into the shirt pocket and accused him of trying to steal it.

CANDID CAMERA CREEP!

Peeping Tom videotapes people sitting on potty!

By JACK ALEXANDER / Staff writer

Businessman Michael Wilson is accused of being an electronic Peeping Tom — who used his video camera to catch people with their drawers down sitting on the potty.

"He positioned the camcorder under a sink in the unisex rest room of a hospital," said Police Lt. Bill Tullock.

"A couple of people were caught sitting on the toilet — one man and one woman.

"I've been flooded with phone calls from people who used the rest room during the half hour or so the camera was rolling.

"They're a little nervous, to say the least."

Wilson, 42, of Sterling Heights, Mich., has been charged with electronic eavesdropping and faces up to two years in prison and/or a $2,000 fine.

He has been bound over to district court for trial in late summer or early fall.

More unsuspecting folks may have been snapped relieving themselves if a plumber hadn't walked into the bathroom to check the pipes under the sink.

"Hospital security played the tape back and saw the image of a man positioning the camera under the sink," Lt. Tullock said.

"Besides the two people sitting on the john, we found a man who apparently was talking on the telephone.

"He gave his name and business phone number to authorities.

"It was on the audio portion. That led us to Wilson.

"The video also showed blurred images of women's legs under a table. It appeared someone had placed the camera on their lap and covered it with the table cloth."

Cops believe this bizarre incident occurred at a business luncheon Wilson attended on February 16 in Detroit held by the International Association of Business Communicators.

MINNESOTA CATS!

The world's only pool-playing kitty

By BILLY STEELE / Special correspondent

Cute little Tiger Stripes looks like any other kitty cat until he picks up a pool cue — and runs the table!

You heard right. The 5-month-old critter has beaten dozens of men and women in exhibitions and tournaments that bill him as "Minnesota Cats, the world's only pool-playing kitten."

"He's in a class by himself, that's for sure," Betty Green, the kitten's owner, told reporters in Minneapolis.

"I don't want to brag or anything like that. But like Minnesota Fats, the pool legend he's nicknamed after, one of these days he's going to be a champion." The 41-year-old bank teller said she bought Tiger Stripes after she moved into a new home earlier this year.

She found out about his fascination with billiards when her nephew brought a miniature pool table over to her house and complained that he couldn't play because the cat was raking balls into the pockets with his paws.

"I thought it was cute so I went to the toy store and bought Tiger Stripes his own little pool table the next day," explained Miss Green.

"I knew it sounds crazy, but he knocked the balls into the pockets with his paws and batted them out so he could knock them back in.

"I didn't think all that much about it until I came home from work one day and found him sitting up on his back legs, holding the cue with his paws. He was trying his best to hit the balls," she added. "By the end of the week, he was sinking just about every shot he attempted."

On a whim, Miss Green took the cat to a pool hall where he could try his luck on a regulation table.

"Everyone wanted to see Tiger Stripes play so the owner set up a few exhibitions," said Miss Green.

"Tiger Stripes froze up at first. After that, I signed him up for a couple of weekly tournaments they have at the pool hall. He didn't do so well in the first one. But the next week, he was a semifinalist."

Miss Green is the first to admit that her cat has an advantage over opponents because he gets to stand on the table and move close to the balls so he can hit them with his toy cue stick.

She also has to point to the balls he's supposed to hit.

"Nobody seems to mind," she said.

OWNER Betty Green, above left, bought Tiger Stripes for companionship. The clever kitty has since become a world-class pool player.

DON'T diet & feel better fast, says top doc!

EATING FATTY FOODS is okay, says Dr. Dale Atrens, author of the shocking book Don't Diet.

Don't worry if you're overweight. It's okay to be fat!

That's the advice of food expert Dr. Dale M. Atrens, who thinks the best way to diet is NOT to diet!

"It may come as a surprise that fat is no more than a minor bother," Dr. Atrens says. "The reality is that weight loss is only occasionally desirable and very rarely possible."

Dr. Atrens, author of the new book Don't Diet, says the dangers of being fat — usually defined as 20 percent over an ideal body weight — aren't really that great.

"Forget starvation, semi-starvation and all of the other crazy unbalanced diets," says Dr. Atrens, a psychobiologist.

"Some people are simply meant to be fat. Fat is not a failure. Accepting your fat as a normal part of you rather than as an alien pathology that afflicts you means that you can start thinking positively about your health."

By LAURA McMAHAN
Correspondent

In his controversial book, Dr. Atrens offers several mindbusting tips.

Forget cutting back on your favorite junk foods, he says.

If you deprive yourself of these tasty treats, you'll eat more in the long run.

Buy up your favorite foods and indulge yourself. After a while, you'll get sick of the stuff, he notes.

When you're feeling like a binge, relax and try to maintain a healthy life-style. "If you are fat today, you probably will be fat tomorrow," Dr. Atrens says. "Just because fat is usually a permanent state, it does not mean that fat people cannot be healthy."

Space alien graveyard found!

Discovery of 500-year-old cemetery stuns scientists

Scientists who found an extraterrestrial cemetery in central Africa say the graveyard is at least 500 years old!

"There must be 200 bodies buried there and not a single one of them is human," Dr. Hugo Schild, the Swiss anthropologist, told reporters in Kigali, Rwanda.

"They are in an amazing state of preservation to be so old," he added. "Soil and tissue samples indicate the bodies have been in the ground since the 1400s. We're now trying to figure out where they came from — and what killed them."

Dr. Schild and his colleagues reportedly discovered the alien graveyard on a routine survey of the Rwandan jungle.

They originally thought they had stumbled on the remains of a centuries-old village. But excavation reveals nothing but alien bodies — stacked in rows in a jungle clearing.

"The creatures themselves were much taller and skinnier than humans," said the expert.

"They stood about 7 feet tall and they were not any bigger around than small reptiles."

"Their heads were larger than the average man's and they had no mouth, nose or eyes to speak of.

"I assume that they communicated with one another telepathically and moved around like bats with some kind of biological radar."

Without further study there is no way to tell for sure what killed the extraterrestrials.

But Dr. Schild speculated that the 200 aliens were part of a single landing party that encountered a deadly virus.

Because they would have had no immunity to Earth disease, he added, something as simple as the flu could have wiped out the entire party.

"Some of them must have survived because there is no evidence of a spaceship to be found," said Dr. Schild. "Of course, as our excavation efforts continue, there's no telling what we may run across.

"All we know now is that 200 space aliens came to Earth 500 years ago, died and were buried. I'm not going to get a good night's sleep until I find out why."

NEW "AGE REVERSAL FORMULA" – THE LATEST SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY FOR LINES, WRINKLES AND UNDER-EYE POUCHES

New Medical Discovery! ALPHA/H HELPS YOU GROW A FRESH NEW SKIN!

IN AS LITTLE AS 10 TO 14 DAYS

Direct from leading medical journals, plus "Cosmopolitan" and "Vogue" magazines, comes the "bombshell announcement" of a wondrous discovery that can help you grow away lines and signs of age . . . grow in a brand new, smooth-as-silk complexion . . . and make you look 10 — 15 — Why, even a whole generation younger in just 2 weeks or less! Here's how:

Look carefully. Can you see a single wrinkle, a single dry-skin line in the face of this beautiful mature woman? A single hint of her true age? Then see the kinds of wonders that await you when you try new ALPHA/H Age Reversal Formula and actually see yourself grow a fresh new skin in just [illegible] 14 days!

WHAT NATURE DOES FOR BABIES' SKIN MEDICAL SCIENCE NOW DOES FOR YOU

It's a medical fact that babies and young children continually grow away the surface layer of their skin every few days. That's why when they cut or scrape themselves, they heal so quickly. A fresh, new, perfectly clear skin grows in virtually overnight.

But, in adults, with our slowed down skin metabolism, it takes many times longer for a new surface layer of skin to gradually creep through . . . giving lines, wrinkles, furrows, crows' feet and facial sag spots more than enough time to entrench themselves — even make your skin look dull, tired, excessively lined and wrinkled.

CAN NATURE BE CHANGED?

But now comes the thrilling announcement of a new medical breakthrough . . . the world's first "Age Reversal Formula," to help your skin regenerate itself and grow away the most prominent, tell-tale signs that shout your age to the world! Yes, a proven skin-cell stimulant that speeds up nature's own rejuvenation process — grows away that dull, aging outer layer of your skin — and promotes the appearance of a totally clear, totally fresh "new-born skin" to take its place . . . in mere days!

SO EFFECTIVE — EVEN WITHOUT MAKEUP, EVEN IN BRIGHTEST DAYLIGHT — YOU LOOK 10–15–20 YEARS YOUNGER!

Called "ALPHA/H AGE REVERSAL FORMULA," you simply apply creme just once each morning — then be amazed by the rejuvenating wonders that take place over [illegible] 10 to 14 days — as you actually grow a fresher, clearer, younger-looking skin . . . smoother, softer, firmer to the touch . . . more [illegible], more vibrant, more youthful to the eye.

NEVER AGAIN LOOK ANYWHERE NEAR YOUR TRUE AGE FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE!

Yes, here at last is a new start — a second chance to recapture youthful beauty with this wonder-working "ALPHA/H Age Reversal Formula." Even more important — [illegible] in your hands, for the first time ever, medical science's Lifetime Defense against the most pronounced, beauty-destroying effects of lines, wrinkles, crows' feet, [illegible] and under-eye pouchiness.

[illegible] instead of trying to hide and mask the age revealing outward signs [illegible] sorts of creams and cosmetics . . . you can actually help speed up nature . . . help grow away those "living nightmares" . . . and grow a fresher, clearer, more youthful-looking skin than was ever before possible! Yes, a Forever Younger-Looking Skin, Every Day For The Rest of Your Life!

MOM GIVES BIRTH TO HER OWN GRANDSON!

Geraldine Wesolowski is little Matthew Wesolowski's grandmom — and his mom, too!

The 33-year-old Orchard Park, N.Y., woman gave birth to her son Mark's baby after acting as surrogate for Mark, 31, and his wife Susan, 33. The baby is a perfect specimen and Geraldine and her family are pleased as punch.

According to press accounts of the miracle birth, Mark approached his mom and asked her to carry his child after an arrangement with a paid surrogate failed to produce a pregnancy. His wife Susan has a son Michael from a previous marriage, but can no longer bear children.

By SUSAN JIMISON
Staff writer

"I thought it was impossible," Geraldine recalls.

"I thought, 'I'm too old. I've gone through menopause.'

"I wanted to help but in the back of my mind I kept thinking it won't work."

After talking with her husband Al, Geraldine finally made up her mind to help her son and agreed to allow a fertilized egg to be implanted in her womb.

After several failures, an embryo took, and little Mat thew was born nine months later, weighing a healthy 6 pounds, 3 ounces.

Now Geraldine's doctors say they're swamped with letters from other desperate couples asking them to arrange a similar procedure for them.

"They're all coming out of the woodwork," said Dr. Ida Campagna, Geraldine's obstetrician.

"This is just the beginning."

Man beats up two in barroom brawl — with his artificial arm!

Disabled Dave Ellis was at a disadvantage when a barroom brawl broke out so he unscrewed his artificial arm — and beat up two men with it!

Ellis, his brother Paul and friend John Sutcliffe, 31, had each put away six pints of beer at a pub near their home in Wakefield, England, when Paul confronted another boozer which led to the fight.

"What are you staring at?" 23-year-old Paul asked Bob Parks who was sitting with his wife at the other end of the bar.

"You're looking at my brother's false arm, aren't you?" charged Paul.

When a scuffle followed, 21-year-old Dave jumped in, bopping another drinker who tried to stop the melee.

Before cops arrived, Dave's victims had suffered crushed ribs, multiple bruises, black eyes after repeatedly being whacked with his false arm.

Hauled off to court, the three brawlers pleaded guilty to assault charges after one-armed Dave told a judge he used his plastic limb "as an offensive weapon."

The judge fined the trio $1,500 and ordered them to pay $500 in their vic

NEW VIRUS MAKES PEOPLE POP LIKE BALLOONS!

By CHRIS GUTNAIL

A horrifying new virus causes a rapid buildup of gases in the body and makes its victims explode!

The world's foremost expert on the virus, Dr. Rinaldo de Gentia, says five cases have been reported in South America alone.

It is not yet known how the virus is transmitted. But it appears to be extremely lethal — and usually kills within 48 hours of the infection.

"I saw a patient blow apart right before my eyes," the virologist told reporters in Buenos Aires, Argentina. "I've never heard of anything like it.

"It might well be the most virulent infectious agent in the world today."

Nobody knows when the virus began to infect humans but a similar virus has been found to have existed for years, said the expert.

Curiously, animals rarely if ever suffer more than short-lived nausea and diarrhea from the virus — and develop only minimal symptoms.

"In humans the virus runs a different course," said Dr. de Gentia. "Instead of focusing on the digestive tract it attacks muscle tissue throughout the body.

"It invades individual cells and generates gases so rapidly that the cells cannot absorb them. Victims swell up and then explode."

Death is spectacular, said Dr. de Gentia, because patients are usually conscious when they blow up.

The report has rallied medical officials throughout the world to study the disease virus. Find out its [illegible] and a [illegible] cure.

"We've seen the cases in Argentina, Brazil, Bolivia and Peru since the beginning of the year and at least 100 new cases crop up every week," said Dr. de Gentia.

"There's no doubt that the virus will become an international problem if we don't soon find a cure. It is the new AIDS," he added.

"But it could end up be[illegible] [illegible] ing much more. I don't want to cause a panic, but that's exactly what it is."

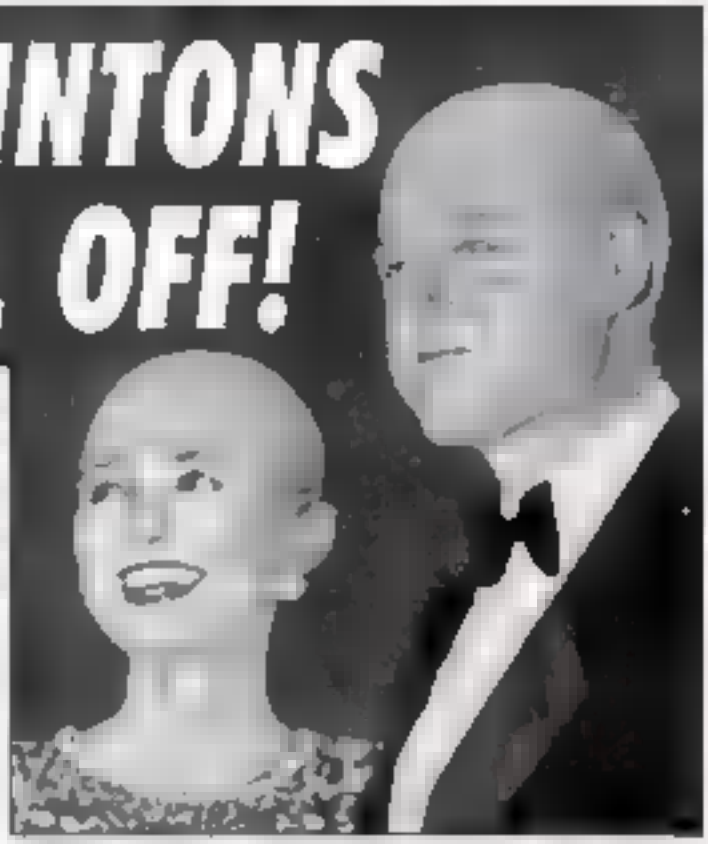
THE CLINTONS TAKE IT ALL OFF!



A fancy pants barber from France has a sensational solution for the bad hair days that plague the Clintons — take it off, take it all off. "The look of the '90s is the head in all its bald glory," says Marcel Blitz, a leading Left Bank hairstylist in Paris.

"This look gets to the root of the hair problem: no hair, no problem," says Marcel, who has offered to do the entire Clinton clan for half the price the current family clipper, Christophe, charges — $200 bucks a cut.

"I'll do it cheaper and nobody does it better," says Marcel.

"This is not a fad, either. Who are today's superstars on TV? Baldies.

DREW [redacted] FABULOUS CHAIN-SMOKING WORKOUT!

Young Drew Barrymore is a hot star — so does that mean the kid from E.T. works out every day?

"No, never. The only thing I work out at is smoking," says the 16-year-old Hollywood hellcat.

"I light the cig, bring it to my lips, inhale and drop the hand to the ashtray."

Drew hates it when transcontinental flights prevent her from "working out."

"I have to fly to New York and I hate it that you can't smoke on the planes.

"You pay, like, ten thousand dollars for a seat and they tell you that you can't smoke?

"I think that sucks."

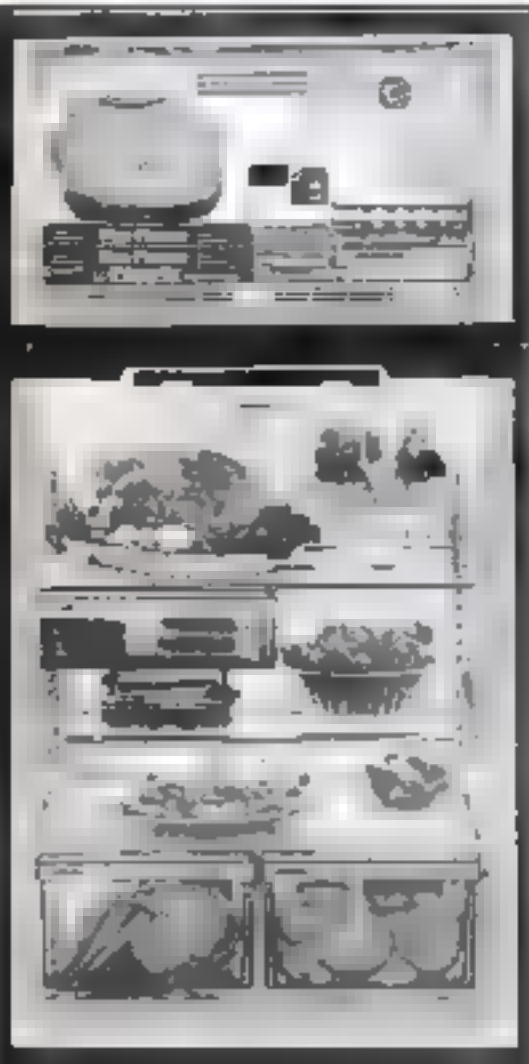
WHAT YOU KEEP IN THE FRIDGE REVEALS YOUR PERSONALITY!

ARE YOU CONFUSED? Do you have a split-up personality? Check out the kitchen and take a look in your refrigerator at home.



By ROGER DOUGLAS

The contents of your refrigerator reveal a lot about your personality, says a psychologist.

"The variety of foods in your refrigerator isn't just a reflection of your food taste and eating habits—it's a picture of your personality," said Dr Herbert Hoffman. "An abundance of one type of food over another tells something about your life-style."

Dr Fredrick Koenig agreed.

"The bulk of what you intend to eat or serve to others is kept in the refrigerator," Dr Koenig said. "Thus, the contents indicate tastes and habits, reflect upbringing, give clues to education and socio-economic status and reveal personality."

Here's what the foods in your fridge say about you:

● A freezer section full of frozen foods. This reveals a "plan for the future" personality.

This homemaker probably has a retirement plan, carries lots of insurance and seeks to protect herself from unforeseen emergencies.

● Plates of desserts. This reveals an "eager to please" personality.

● Bowls overflowing with left-overs. This shows a "never say die" personality. This lady realizes every-thing she's worked for going to waste.

● Only the essentials. This shows a "confident" personality. This individual is confident about the future. She or he today has few worries and has little uncertainty about tomorrow.

● Shortage of snacks. This reveals a "back to basics" personality. This homemaker has firm beliefs, strong convictions and is not likely to be swayed by what others say and does not rely heavily on "new ingredients."

● Trays of fruits and vegetables. This reveals an "intellectual" personality. This lady has a quick mind, is very alert, open to [illegible] ge, and she usually has a number of [illegible] friends.

● Shelves full of gourmet items. This shows an "adventurous" personality. This kind of homemaker is interested in widening her horizons every way possible. She likes new people and new ideas.

● Bunches of different beverages. This reveals an "easy and casual" personality. This lady is always on the go, ready for action and is likely to be impatient when things take more than the expected. She usually has a dozen projects under way at the time.

● Lots of food made from scratch. This shows a "traditional" personality. This woman places the most importance on her family and home. Because a healthy, happy family

He's tan, he's rested, he's ready

I'm madder than a politician with an exploding cigar that President Hillary Rodham and her hubby Bill are steering this country down the highway to hell!

My Hillary has about as much chance of whipping our bankrupt nation back into shape as Bill's old girlfriend Gennifer Flowers.

The only thing Hillary's got that's presidential is a butt as wide as Bill pastrami William Howard Taft's.

Let's face it. It's working folks are fed up as hell and we aren't going to take it any more.

Let's bring Nixon back in '96!

Yes, you heard me right. Nixon's tan, he's rested and he's ready to go!

He might have been Tricky Dick back then. But he was tricky enough to keep America out of a major war, refuse to prosecute and avoid suspect[ion]

10 tips to put the zip back in your marriage!

You can keep your husband from straying by putting a little zip back in your marriage, says a top marriage counselor, with these easy-to-follow tips.

Men stray because they feel the excitement has gone out of their marriages, says Dr. Ken Owen. But, he continued, a happy husband is less likely to have a roving eye — and he recommends the following ways to keep your hubby satisfied with what he's got at home:

1. Give yourself regular beauty treatments. Indulge in the works — shampoo, set, facial, nails, etc.

2. Wear clothes that make the best of what you've got. If you have good legs, for example, wear short skirts that show them off instead of covering them up with jeans.

3. Let your hubby know you like making love. Instead of putting sex on a schedule, be available at offbeat times.

4. Compliment your husband as a lover. It's important to reassure a man that his bedroom talent is top notch.

5. Have romantic dinners. Make dinner sexy — and let nature take its course.

6. Take your bath at night. A sensuous, perfumed bubble bath will make your hubby more interested in cuddling.

7. Share your mate's interests. If hubby is a golfer, for example, take golf lessons on the sly. Then surprise him one day by joining him for a game.

8. Be upbeat when he comes home at night. Give your man a chance to unwind before hitting him with problems or bad news.

9. Let your hubby know he's No. 1. Regularly tell him he's tops in your book. Brag about him to friends and family — and let him overhear you.

10. Keep the home looking good. A man doesn't like to come home to a mess.

He never said a foreign word in his entire life!

Indiana man speaks perfect German after truck hits him

Buddy Keegan

NOW he can't understand a word of English!

By TANYA BRODER

Warehouse worker Buddy Keegan was hit by a truck three months ago — and it knocked the English language right out of him!

The 28-year-old Indianapolis [illegible] man has been speaking fluent German ever since the accident, although he had never even heard it spoken before he was hit.

Doctors say he suffered a mild brain injury and now has a rare neurological problem called Foreign Accent Syndrome.

"It is totally weird," said Keegan, who was about [illegible] "I have understood my [illegible] but I [illegible] I don't even understand myself. The hospital had to get [illegible] because they couldn't [illegible] I kept asking for water and [illegible] everybody around me." Keegan recalled. "They didn't understand a word I was saying. [illegible] they thought I was delirious."

Finally a neurological specialist realized I was speaking German and Dan brought in a translator. Ever since then, I've had to have help to speak to people. I can't understand my family or friends or my doctors. I can't read English anymore. It is a real pain in the neck."

Experts say Keegan's linguistic problem results when the blood flow to parts of the brain involved in [illegible] is restricted by swelling or injury. Last year doctors reported on a similar case involving a 40-year-old Massachusetts man who suffered [illegible] in a traffic accident, speaking with a Chinese accent.

In a description of this case presented at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Neurology in New York, Dr. Mario Mendez reported the syndrome was caused by a change in brain circuitry.

"I don't know if it's my brain circuits or not, but whatever is happening, it's screwing up my life," says Keegan, who pays his translator $1 an hour. "They tell me it might get better or it might not, depending on how well the brain injury heals."

Meanwhile, I can't watch TV, I can't listen to the radio, I can't visit with friends. I can't even learn English again because my brain is stuck in German. I've even considered moving to Germany so I could find a normal life again. I've Man takes $30 million in cash to his grave — and booby-traps his coffin!

Maurice Dees

Tycoon's casket rigged to blow sky-high if it is pried open!

Moneybugs businessman Maurice Dees was so determined to take his fortune with him when he died that he stuffed $30 million in his coffin — and rigged it to blow sky-high the minute anybody pried it open!

"Maury knew the end was coming and he just couldn't bear to leave all that beautiful money behind," said his heartsick sister Violette Richards, 63.

"So he bought himself a gorgeous silk-lined coffin, put explosives all over it and dumped $30 million inside. Once that was done, he was all smiles even though he knew he was dying — because he knew his money was going with him."

By JOE SINGER
Staff writer

And when the fat cat banker died of cancer two months later at the age of 67, devoted Violette told him to rest in his fancy casket — on a bed of $1,000 bills.

"I had to lay him out in the coffin myself because he left strict instructions that nobody but me was to get near that coffin until the 3rd was what and Chicago was set," the still grieving sister told reporters in Chicago.

"Once I got him in there, I found the explosives just like he showed me and turned the whole thing over to the people from the funeral home knowing that nobody could ever get at my brother or his money without blowing themselves to smithereens."

Money-grubbing Maurice had made millions during a 47-year career in entertainment, banking and real estate, but he never trusted anyone with his money. He learned he was dying, he had no one to leave his money to.

"I'm the only family Maury had and my husband and I have more money than we'll ever need, so there was no reason for him to leave any thing to me," said well-heeled Violette. "Of course, I'm not sure he'd have left him any of his money anyway because he knew that stuff there than any-

Don't feel guilty about divorce — it's in your genes, say experts

Divorced Americans can stop feeling guilty over the failure of their marriages, an expert says — because divorce is a biological need that has been programmed into us for millions of years.

Anthropologist Helen Fisher says that marital breakups come about naturally in patterns that occur on every country on Earth. And they may actually help us in the battle for survival, the scientist has found.

from Australia and Russia to Sweden and Costa Rica — and found patterns that have nothing to do with language or geography," Dr Fisher told World News.

"I found that divorce occurs most frequently around the third or fourth year of marriage. In most societies divorce affects men and women in their twenties, usually between the ages of 25 and 29.

"And divorce occurs most frequent-only one child. [illegible] the same no matter what other differences there are among couples."

The consistent pattern indicates that divorce serves a biological need, Dr Fisher says. She points out that breakups occur at the height of the reproductive years, as couples who split usually go on to marry others and have more children.

This serial monogamy increases the genetic diversity of offspring, so cies will have the characteristics needed to overcome changes in the environment.

"The variety will ensure that the best adapted survive," Dr Fisher explained.

Dr Fisher says her findings should be reassuring to Americans men and women who blame themselves when their marriages come to an end.

My brother was a strong believer in recreation and I'm sure that despite his painful last days he died with a grin on his face -- figuring he'd be running back any day and starting his new life with a $50 million bankroll."

"THERE was no reason for him to leave anything to me," says Victoria Richards.

Spend 9 minutes ■ day for a lifetime of healthy teeth

Nine minutes a day! That's all the time you need to do what is necessary to maintain healthy teeth for a lifetime, according to several distinguished dental experts.

"There's no question that keeping your teeth the rest of your life is a very realistic goal," said Dr. Terry Slaughter.

He and four other experts say this is what you have to do:

■ Brush and floss your teeth every time you eat, or at least three times a day.

"If you can brush your teeth for; and if you are unable to brush your teeth after eating a meal or snack, then you should at least rinse your mouth," said oral hygiene expert Dr. Arthur Charvat.

Or you can "dry brush," according to dentistry professor Dr. Matthias J. Hourigan.

"This means just running a dry toothbrush over the surface of the teeth as well as the gums."

■ Brush your tongue.

"Certainly the tongue should be brushed. There are little holes and valleys on the tongue and food can; ways can the brush over the tongue and all over the gums."

■ Don't smoke.

"Smokers have more decay and more periodontal disease," Dr. Slaughter said.

■ Eat a well-balanced diet — and avoid refined sugar.

"The chemical processes involved in the ingestion of refined sugars are cariogenic — they can cause caries or decay," explained Dr. W.F. Klinghoffer Jr., past president of the California Dental Association.

■ Use fluoride toothpaste. It's the best.

Dr. Goldman and the other experts urge that all parents encourage their children to develop good oral hygiene habits.

"Keeping your teeth a lifetime; year for removal of identified plaque," said Dr. Henry Goldman, former dean of Boston University's School of Graduate Dentistry.

But he added that if a person religiously follows all of the other steps, then he will not get a significant plaque buildup.

Bizarre illness causes depress

By SUSAN JAMISON - Staff writer

A mystery disease is stalking the residents of Chico, Calif., baffling doctors and saddling unlucky victims with a weird list of symptoms ranging from depression and terror to agonizing stomach cramps!

The puzzling malady first cropped up in 1981 and has so far stricken at least 200 men, women and children living in the Chico area.

Health authorities have studied the illness in depth but admit they cannot explain what causes it or how to cure it.

"It's a horrible disease," says Ruth Sweet, who with her husband John suffered from the mystery malady for many months before a change in life style eliminated the symptoms.

"We're real normal people. Two years ago, if someone had told me a story like this, I wouldn't have believed it. But this isn't just my story, it's the story of many people. Was the cause the same for all of us?"

"I have no idea."

The Sweets' experience with the mysterious illness began in 1981 when John, then 43, began falling apart emotionally. He felt terrified, depressed, anxious and said he was so desperate he dreaded being away from his wife. Even the simplest decisions became impossible.

"I thought he was having a nervous breakdown," Ruth recalled. "John was always a happy person. All of a sudden he had a horrible emotional shutdown.

"When I asked him what I should make for dinner, he cried."

John Sweet consulted doctors, who treated him with antibiotics and antidepressants. But after three years with chronic bronchitis and symptoms of depression, too, they decided to consult an environmental expert.

The expert recommended they filter their water to eliminate harmful chemicals, stop using pesticides around [illegible]

But a special study by state health officials could find no cause for the disease, which has generated as many as 30 calls a day to the local health department.

There is such a variation of symptoms and details among victims that it is impossible to narrow to conclusions about what might trigger the epidemic. Officials have named pesticides, chemicals in contaminated water and air pollution among other factors.

WANTED:

Loving woman to breast-feed baby sea cow!

If this little fellow isn't nursed by a willing mother soon — he'll DIE!

By TANYA BROOKS / Special correspondent

Frantic scientists are desperately seeking a woman who will act as a wet nurse — to a baby sea cow!

Wildlife experts say the rare 6-month-old creature was separated from his mother, and now will not feed from a bottle and spits up any food that is forced down his throat. They believe breast-feeding is the only answer and since no female sea cows are available, they're advertising for a woman to suckle the little orphan.

"A human mother offers the best chance for survival of this baby because she is most similar to the sea cow mother," says Dr Sukbo Gunn, a marine biologist who has cared for the seal-like mammal since it was trapped in a fishing net two weeks ago. "She holds the infant to her breast just like a sea cow does. She can sit for the feeds or feed restfully that is essential for the baby and her milk is an excellent substitute for the milk of sea cows.

"If we can't find a woman to breast-feed the baby soon he will die. He's weakening rapidly."

The baby sea cow is called "Tiny" by workers at the Project. That kind title belies the fact that the 87 inch long, 85-pound baby has already lost weight and appears to be less active than he was when first captured.

Dr Gunn is offering $50 a day to any woman who will nurse the sea cow, but Thai women are reluctant to help. Now the biologist is advertising internationally, hoping that a wildlife lover will agree to help the baby.

"The woman would be helping a species that is in danger of extinction," Dr Gunn said.

"She would be doing a great service, but it won't be easy — she would have to be a good milk producer who is willing to feed Tiny both day and night. She would have to get into the water to feed him and we would ask her to spend several hours a day caressing him and holding him in her arms.

"Sea cow mothers have breasts on their chests just like women do and they feed their young while holding them in their flippers on the surface of the water. If we can duplicate this process we believe they will thrive."

While some women might be repulsed by the idea of breast-feeding an animal, Dr Gunn points out that women have suckled a variety of wild creatures, including elephants in many parts of the world. He says the sea cow is appealing in a human way, with hairless skin and primitive arms and many man like characteristics.

"In fact, the animal can easily be mistaken for a human from a distance," he says. "That's how the myth of the mermaid began — sailors spotted sea cow mothers feeding their babies on the surface of the water and thought they were human females."

EVERY POKER PLAYER KNOWS THIS GAL!

She's been on playing cards for more than 500 years!

Few Americans have ever heard of Elizabeth of York — yet they see her face every time they play cards.

The royal lady has been the model for all four queens in a standard deck of playing cards and her face is reproduced on astonishing 500 million times every year in America alone.

Born in 1465, Elizabeth married King Henry VII of England in 1486, uniting the rival houses of York and Lancaster and ending England's 30-year War of the Roses.

Elizabeth died in 1503, but her special immortality was guaranteed when her face was used as the model for queens on decks of cards issued during and after her reign.

And card designs have not changed much since then.

One reason is gamblers are suspicious of innovations and have always wanted on the same design, said a spokesman for the International Playing Card Society.

SEE THE RESEMBLANCE? Elizabeth of York's face appears on billions of playing cards!

RETIREMENT-HOME RUCKUS: Two of oldsters grapple for a bite of the fruit during contest.

Apple-eating contest turns into deadly brawl — and 3 die!

Three people were killed and dozens injured when all hell broke loose during an apple-eating contest at an old folks home.

By RICK TRACY
Correspondent

The silly contest required three people to stand around an apple that was suspended from the ceiling by a string. The first person to get a bite out of the apple would be the winner.

"There old biddies were in each other's face trying to grab an apple with their teeth when they banged heads, and one of them lost her glasses," Police Lt. Zenit Dobas said.

"One called the other an 'old battle ax' and they began pushing and shoving each other. One of the oldsters, a woman identified as Bella Kiraly, fell to the ground with a bloody nose. What happened next depends on who you talk to."

Witnesses later told police that relatives of Mrs. Kiraly, 78, saw her lying on the ground with blood all over her face and went berserk.

"The brawl that ensued turned the front lawn of the old folks home into a bloody battleground," Lt. Dobas told reporters. "People were bashing each other's heads with the canes they use, anything they could get their hands on."

When cops arrived at the retirement home on the outskirts of Bucharest, they found three people lay dead of head injuries and 21 others were injured, including five elderly residents of the retirement home.

Two of the dead men were grandsons of Mrs. Kiraly and the woman who knocked her glasses off, Hilda Perkin. The third victim was Mrs. Perkins' brother, who had driven 180 miles to attend the annual family outing at the old folks home.

"This was supposed to be a day of fun," said home superintendent Andras Vallan. "The apple-eating contest usually is the most popular event. But something went wrong, dreadfully wrong."

Housewife tapes voices of the DEAD!

VIOLET JOYCE recorded the spoken words of people from beyond the grave.

By BEATRICE BEATEN
Correspondent

Grandmother Violet Joyce recorded a family message to send to relatives — and the ghost of a long-dead stranger joined in on the tape!

The white spectre repeated the word "Hawkins," which turned out to be the last name of a couple buried in a local cemetery where the 46-year-old woman made the recording.

"I made a tape of a family chat to send to a relative and when I played it back a deep, hoarse voice was clearly heard on saying the name 'Hawkins.' The London woman recalled. "I have no idea how it could have got there."

"I used a brand-new tape and for peace and quiet made the recording on a remotely across the road. I went back to the graveyard and was amazed when I looked at the bench I had been sitting on. It was dedicated to a couple called Alice and Bert Hawkins."

Mrs. Joyce's stunning recording wasn't the first she heard and heard in which the voice of the dead sounded from beyond the grave. Only weeks earlier the housewife's daughter, Rita Warman, had the same otherworldly experience.

Mrs. Warman, 36, made a recording of nursery rhymes for her children and although the tape was reversed at first, later it could be heard to include the voice of an unknown person speaking. "Poor old Rita was very upset," Mrs. Joyce said. "She thought it was the spirit of her dead father trying to get in touch with her."

Sure enough, the sister was in trouble. Her husband had just lost his job and one of the children was sick.

Rita and her mother are two among hundreds of people who have reported receiving messages from the dead. Experts in electronics and physics say the bizarre recordings have become so common they're given a name: Electronic Voice Phenomenon or EVP.

But Violet Joyce's experiences are among the most vivid and mysterious.

The bereaved housewife says she has found a number of other voices on her tapes since that first message from the graveyard. One, while space, interrupted Rita's rant on the recording, and worried her so much she immediately contacted her sister.

Experts convinced recordings from beyond the grave are real!

Another left its message on Norman as a type recording she made of a spiritual healer.

"I don't know why they choose me and my family," Mrs. Joyce said. "But it doesn't frighten me to be hearing from these spirits. In fact, it pleases me to think they are reaching out to me in an attempt to bridge the gulf between life and death."

HALF-MAN, HALF-DOG planning August meeting with brother he's never seen!

KENT MORLEY, age 38

By TANYA SNIDER, Correspondent

Half-man, half-dog Kent Morley thought he was the only one of his kind in the world — until Weekly World News put him in touch with a brother he never knew he had!

After Kent was featured in the April 28 issue of the NEWS this paper got a call from Delton Cranquer, 40, of Toronto, Canada, a chemist with the same hairy features as Kent, 38. With the help of NEWS reporters, the two made contact by telephone -- and learned that they shared the same parents, but that Delton had been given up for adoption shortly after his birth in 1954. The brothers' parents later married, and Kent was born in 1957.

Now the long lost brothers are planning to meet for the first time in a special reunion sponsored by this paper.

"Mom gave Delton up for adoption because he was born out of wedlock and she never told me about it because she was ashamed," Kent said. "It was a shock to learn I had a brother, but after I talked to Delton I was thrilled.

DELTON CRANQUER, age 40

"All my life I have felt like a freak. I thought I was alone in the world. Now I have someone to share my experiences. Delton understands me like nobody else could. I'm so grateful."

Scientists still do not know for certain why Kent and his brother were born with the heads of dogs, the bodies and brains of human beings and behavioral characteristics of both creatures. Experts had studied Kent and knew he had a sister, Susan, who is physically normal, so at first they eliminated genetic factors as the cause of the bizarre condition.

But now that doctors know Kent has a brother with the same problem, they may be forced to look at the mother's genes for the answer.

Delton's condition has not been studied as carefully as his brother's. After his birth the boy was sent to an orphanage where he lived for four years. He was then adopted by a widowed nurse who raised him in an isolated area of northern Canada.

In April, Delton was browsing in a drugstore when he spotted a picture of his brother on the front page of the NEWS. He immediately contacted the newspaper, and the two spoke for the first time in an emotional telephone conference in May. Since then, they've been in touch constantly by letter and telephone.

Delton said he was teased mercilessly as a child because of his appearance. He was called names and was often chased by children who thought he was a monster.

"I'm glad I'm not the only one who looks like this," he said. "I'm looking forward to meeting Kent and his family. I'm sure we'll have a lot to talk about."

Starships playing havoc with Earth's weather!

Hurricanes caused by UFO exhaust!

Fumes combine with oxygen to form killer storms!

1. UFO exhaust fumes form clouds in Earth's stratosphere.
2. Gases in clouds mix with Earth-based atmospheric pollutants creating a mini-tornado.
3. SPINNING vortexes suck in more UFO exhaust fumes, causing whirlwind cloud pattern to emerge into a deadly hurricane.

By SANDRA LEE

Hurricanes are caused by exhaust fumes from UFOs, an astonishing 12-year study has revealed!

"With all the UFO activity that went on over the north Atlantic before Hurricane Andrew first year, there was no way to ignore the evidence," said Gerald Burr, leader of an international research team. "The link between UFOs and destructive weather is undeniable.

"A breeding ground for hurricanes is created when UFO exhaust fumes feed clouds over large bodies of water. These fumes contain gases and elements unlike anything on Earth.

atmosphere they create mass low pressures — which eventually grow into hurricanes.

"There was reports as far back as the early 1900s of strange spaceships probably emitted harmful gases.

"It's just common sense to figure that when these spaceships come to Earth they leave behind millions of miles away they are going to have some effect on our atmosphere," he said. "But it wasn't until the 1980s that we even learned how to measure UFO fumes."

back in 1969 and Andrew in 1992.

"A lot of so-called experts were surprised by how powerful those hurricanes were, but I fully expected it, based on the number of UFO sightings in that area."

Burr admitted there is nothing scientists can do now ahead of observing these alien vessels. In eliminate their dangerous exhaust clouds, even begin to understand what gases are contained in UFO exhaust fumes — that would be the first step.

"Eventually, hurricanes will become a thing of the past."

Victim files $200G lawsuit after boo-boo

Topless waitress burns her boob in bowl of soup!

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Correspondent

Topless waitress Tong Mubua claims she suffered painful injury and public humiliation when she reached across a table to wait on one of her customers — and burned her left breast in a scalding bowl of bird's nest soup!

The 23-year-old Hong Kong waitress filed a lawsuit against her employer, the 'Eats 'n' Treats Topless Restaurant, asking $50,000 for her second- and third-degree burns and $150,000 in damages for the embarrassment and humiliation she suffered in the incident.

"I will not be able to work topless anymore because of my burn scars," she said in a pretrial statement. "But most of the scarring is on the inside — in my mind. When the accident happened my boss and the other people laughed at me and refused to help. I'll never forget the way they made me feel."

Miss Tong, who has a 36-inch bust, said she had complained to her boss before about serving boiling hot beverages and soups while nude from the waist up.

She said that she and several of the other waitresses had suffered minor burns over the 13 months she had worked at the restaurant, but her employer took no actions to protect them.

On the night of her accident, Miss Tong said she was waiting on a table of four customers during dinner hour, serving them soup and egg rolls.

She says she leaned across the table to place an egg roll near one of the businessmen, accidentally dunking her breast in boiling bird's nest soup.

"I screamed and grabbed my injury and everyone there just laughed," she said.

"The pain was terrible, but no one took it seriously.

"I asked them to call a doctor, and they wouldn't. They told me I was making a scene and the pain was just awful.

"I want Eats 'n' Treats to acknowledge the injustice done to me and I want damages for what I suffered," the young woman told the court.

Expert's shocking revelations — many people are ruled by spirits of the dead!

"Eighty percent of my patients suffer from problems brought on by spirits of the dead who are driven to unite with the living and bring them the fears, pains, sicknesses and other problems they had when they were alive."
— Dr. Edith Fiore

How to tell if you're POSSESSED

And what to do about it if you are!

Chances are the troubles that torment you aren't your problems at all, says a top psychologist and author — but the miseries of a dead soul who has possessed you sometime during your life!

By SUSAN JAMISON
Staff writer

And you can rid yourself of everything from depression to weight problems just by banishing the unwelcome spirit that has invaded your body.

"On your own you can learn ways to tell if you are possessed by the spirit of a dead person and how to rid yourself of the spirit," said Dr. Edith Fiore, author of The Unquiet Dead.

"Many people are possessed by earthbound spirits. These are people who have lived and died, but did not go into the afterworld at death. Instead, they stayed on Earth and remained just like they were before death, with the fears, pains, weaknesses and other problems that they had while they were alive. They are drawn to unite with the living. In fact, they don't even know that they have died."

Dr. Fiore told Weekly World News that most victims of these earthbound spirits become possessed at the time of a traumatic experience, such as a death in the family, a serious illness or an accident.

Symptoms of possession range from mild to severe and can even be life-threatening.

The therapist estimates that about 80 percent of her patients are suffering from the problems brought on by spirits of the dead.

To tell if you are among the possessed, she advises that you look for the following symptoms:

- Low energy levels
- Character shifts or mood swings
- Inner voices or voices speaking to you
- Impulsive behavior
- Memory problems
- Poor concentration
- Sudden onset of anxiety or bouts of depression (especially after hospitalization or any other trauma)
- Weight gain with no clear cut cause

Dr. Fiore, who says she has arrived that the average person can rid himself of unwanted spirits by following her simple method.

"You can release a spirit you have had with you for years," she said, "or help someone else using these methods. The spirits get the message and follow their loved ones to the hereafter.

"You see very dramatic changes."

To banish the dead soul that haunts you, Dr. Fiore says, you must speak to the dead person and convince him to leave.

Tell the spirit that he is not the possessed person, but someone else. Tell him his body is dead and that he cannot the possessed person after death.

Tell him he is harming himself and the person he is possessing.

To encourage the spirit to leave Earth, Dr. Fiore advises, you must tell him his loved ones are waiting for him. Reassure him that when he's in the hereafter he will be in a perfect body, not a crippled or aged one.

Tell him there's no such thing as hell — that he will have a wonderful, peaceful existence in the afterlife with everything he wants. Then

Teen beauty plotted to kill strict dad . . . with injection of household bleach!

A scheming schoolgirl planned to kill her dad with a lethal injection of household chemicals — and celebrate his death with a party after cleaning out his bank account.

"She was going to wait until her father went to sleep and stuff a pillow over his face to muffle his screams," Assistant State Attorney Kay Hanlon said.

"With the help of an accomplice, she was going to inject him with a syringe filled with bleach, ammonia and rubbing alcohol."

The 16-year-old girl has been in jail since April 30 when a junior high school classmate alerted police in Schaumburg, Ill., to the teen's murderous plot.

She planned to throw a wild party to celebrate dad's death!

The heartless teen, who wasn't identified because of her age, said her dad had to die because he was too strict and didn't like her boyfriend, Michael B. Hale, 18.

Curran testified that the bleach injection wasn't the only murder plot the teenager discussed with him.

"She said we could break his neck, throw him down the stairs and say that he fell," Curran told the judge.

The callous teen was found guilty of conspiracy to commit murder and solicitation for murder for hire by the judge.

She could be locked up in a juvenile detention facility until she is 21.

"She is no helpless little girl," said prosecutor Hanlon. "She didn't even cry until she heard the judge's verdict."

Her boyfriend, Michael Hale, is being held in jail on $1 million bond in connection with the murder plot and a 15-year-old girl has been accused of supplying a syringe. Both are awaiting trial.

5th grader pulls armed robbery on way to school!

An 11-year-old schoolboy needed a little spending money — so he tied a bandanna over his face and robbed a grocery store at gunpoint!

And when the angry, gun-toting store owner chased him back to school, the cool-armed kid hid behind a teacher and claimed he didn't know "nuthin' about no robbery." The daring holdup stunned cops, school officials and the kid's mother, whose .25-caliber pistol was used in the robbery.

When she asked her son why he did it, the youngster replied "Well, you won't give me any money."

Cops say the boy, whose name was not released, was on his way to school when he stopped at Chanlyn Food Store in Denver, Colo. He slipped a blue bandanna over his face, pulled out the gun and said "Listen to me! Open the cash register and give me the money right away!"

Store owner Lian Pham, 31, said the girl-like hood was barely tall enough to see over the counter.

As the boy fled with $8 from the register, Pham grabbed a rifle and chased him several blocks to his school. The fifth grader ran up to a teacher and yelled for help. Cops said the sobbing youngster denied the robbery until the pistol fell out of his clothes onto the floor.

Police booked the boy for investigation of aggravated robbery. He was being held on $2,500 bail in a youth detention center.

Desperate divorcee Lorraine Maity is ready to flee her home to escape the attentions of a grabby old ghost who sneaks into her bedroom — then crawls into bed and cuddles up next to her!

[illegible] spirit can't keep his hands to himself, says pretty divorcee!

"He [illegible] up at my bedside every morning, and sometimes he slides right under the covers with me," flab-bergasted Lorraine, 21, told reporters in Portsmouth, England.

"He really is a nasty old thing, too. He loves to put his hands all over my body and I have to fight him off.

"He calls me Norma and he says it like he's crying but for her."

The mortified mum is so sick of the amorous apparition that she had Pastor Stephen Potter conduct a special mass in her home to try to drive the drooling spook away.

"I know this woman and I'm certain she's telling us the truth," Pastor Potter said.

"We wouldn't have wasted all that time if we didn't believe every word she says. Unfortunately, I'm afraid the chap is still coming around and bothering her."

The rotten ghost started haunting the home Lorraine shares with her 18-month old daughter Holly several weeks ago.

"He looks like a man about 60 years old — but there's no doubt that he's out of this world," she said. "He's very nasty.

"At first he came around in the mornings and just stood by the side of the bed then vanished. But lately he's gotten a lot braver and he's started climbing into bed with me.

"The first time he cuddled up to me I was so scared I lay real still and eventually he went away. Now I kick and slap at him and that usually is enough to send him packing."

Lorraine's convinced the mischievous spirit drops in to play with happy-go-lucky Holly on occasion, too.

"Sometimes I'll go into the baby's room and she'll be wriggling and giggling like he's tickling her," said the mystified mom.

"I can't see him doing it, but I know he is.

"And several times Holly has told me about the nice man who comes to visit her. I think she actually likes our [illegible]

HOW YOUR BOSS LETS YOU KNOW WHO'S BOSS!

Your boss, while talking to you, puts his hand on your shoulder. Friendliness? Affection? Not necessarily, says a psychologist — he's probably showing dominance.

"If I looked at two people and saw that one person was doing all the touching, I would say that person is dominant in the relationship," said Dr Nancy M Henley.

"When touching is used as a gesture of friendship, love or intimacy, they both do the touching in about equal amounts," she explained.

"But dominant people do a lot of touching when the other person is not expected to touch back.

"Putting the arm around the shoulder or the hand on top of the arm is the kind of gesture that bosses will do to employees, a foreman will do to a worker on the line, or an executive to a secretary.

"He may put his arm on her back, or something like that.

"There are also lots of gestures that men will make to women in escorting them," said Dr Henley, author of the book Body Politics: Power, Sex, and Nonverbal Communication.

"For example, the man may put his arm behind a woman in guiding her through a door or around a corner," she pointed out.

"Or he may put his hand on her back as they enter an elevator." These are also dominant gestures, said Dr Henley.

Generally, men touch men and women touch women in about equal amounts, Dr Henley said.

But men touch women more.

Dinosaurs died out — because there weren't enough boys!

FEMALE dinosaurs started chasing other girls.

By ALEX JACKSON / Correspondent

The dinosaurs became extinct because there weren't enough boy dinosaurs to go around. In fact, eventually, there weren't ANY boy dinosaurs!

As a result, frustrated 160-ton female dinosaurs could have trudged through the steaming jungles for decades looking for love — and never finding it.

That's the amazing claim of Drs. William Gutsko and David Crews. They believe a drop in temperature 65 million years ago may have produced nothing but female dinosaurs.

"It's a real possibility," said Dr. Crews in the British journal Nature, "that the last generation of the giant reptiles didn't have mates of the opposite sex.

"The scenario would be that lower temperatures resulted in only one sex, so the population became extinct," said Dr. Crews.

Drs. Crews and Gutsko made the historic discovery while checking the sex lives of a Middle East lizard thought to be direct descendants of the gigantic dinosaurs.

They found that the sex of many lizards, turtles and crocodiles is decided during incubation and not by genes.

Warmer conditions produce males, while cooler eggs become females.

Thus, the researchers believe a sudden drop in temperature 65 million years ago may have produced a generation of all female dinosaurs.

Then there were no more babies born because there were no boy-girl relationships.

In their tests with lizards, the scientists found that the few female eggs incubated at warmer temperatures behaved like males when they reached maturity, even though they were physiologically female in all respects.

They courted other females and ignored males who tried to get cozy.

"It certainly is a great theory," said an evolutionary biologist at England's Oxford University.

Other scientists believe that starvation or severely cold weather caused the dinosaurs' demise.

Too tired for sex?

"Oh, honey, not tonight, I'm too tired."

Sound familiar?

The "too tired for sex" gambit is a very common problem and is used almost equally by men and women.

"It is a myth that men are always ready for lovemaking while women are normally the reluctant ones," says expert Dr. Mary Ann Bartusis.

But you needn't let the "too tired" excuse put sex to sleep in your marriage, she said.

Dr. Bartusis offers the following advice to couples who want to reawaken a slumbering love life:

● Be sure you're fit. If your body feels too tired for lovemaking but "the spirit is willing," you may have a diagnosable physical problem that a doctor can correct. So get a thorough checkup.

● Remember that the older you get, the more important it is to eat nutritious foods and get plenty of exercise. This will help you feel as vital and energetic as you did in your younger years.

● Don't be concerned if you feel too tired for sex if you've truly overexerted yourself in some physical way . . . if you've recently changed jobs, moved to a new house or cared for a sick family member . . . then being too tired is understandable — and only temporary.

● Decide whether your problem is psychological. Once you've ruled out physical causes for being too tired for sex, the problem might be in your head. Many people who complain of being too tired are really saying that they're bored.

● Combat boredom. Get involved in some satisfying new activity. Get out of the house more. Make some new friends. Take a study course that interests you. Volunteer for some community activity.

● Learn to experiment with new ways of lovemaking. With your mate's cooperation, read appropriate books on the subject. A change of scene, a change in timing or even a change in romantic approach could easily add new zest to your sexual relationship.

● Bring unexpressed hostility out in the open. If you and your mate have serious disagreements about finances, raising the children, dealing with in-laws or any of the other numerous marital problems, don't avoid discussing them. Until difficulties such as these are resolved, your emotional energies will be diverted from lovemaking.

● "And finally," says Dr. Bartusis, "entertain the possibility that your 'too tired' feeling is the result of misplaced priorities. That you have relegated sex to 'last on the list' in your life."

Eight easy tips that will put ZING back in your love life!

Alabama WORLD'S WOMAN!

Human skeleton Joyce-Ann Bishel stands 5 feet, 2 inches tall and weighs a skin-and-bones 31 pounds — making the Alabama mom the skinniest woman in the world!

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Special correspondent

The stringbean brunette first came to the attention of doctors when she went in a medical clinic for a checkup in March.

Incredibly they discovered she weighs even less than Izinildes Santos of Brazil, who at 33 pounds was considered to be the thinnest woman alive.

"I may be skinny, but I'm all woman and I'm proud of the way I look," says Joyce-Ann, 28, who agreed to tell Weekly World News her story. "I don't have any desire to gain weight.

"At the size I am, my clothes fit just great. I feel good and I'm in perfect health."

The pretty cotton broker's wife says she went to see doctors a few weeks ago while visiting relatives in Huntsville, Ala., because she hadn't had a checkup for five years.

She was amazed, she said, when a doc acted as if she were on the verge of death.

The Huntsville physician referred her to a specialist for treatment of severe anorexia, but Joyce-Ann says she's not but she never gains a pound. "I weighed 113 pounds before I got pregnant with my little boy Billy, but after I had him I started losing weight," she said. "I kept right on losing until I leveled off at 31 pounds and I've been at that weight for four years now."

The toothpick-slim housewife admits she's uncomfortable. And since a women's magazine ran a story about her, she's become an international celebrity — giving her even more reason to maintain her correct weight, she says.

"I've had telephone calls from newspeople in England, France and Japan," says Joyce-Ann, who lives with her husband, Junior Sisbel, 41, and their 7-year-old son, Billy, in Miami, Fla. "I've had letters from guys who say they like me, but this woman wanted me to divorce Junior and marry him — honest."

But while Joyce-Ann is enjoying the spotlight, others worry that she may be seriously ill.

"She's absolutely skin and bones," said one nurse. "She's discovered how little she weighed.

"The doctors can't really figure out how she stays alive at that weight. And they can't figure out why she's so thin when she eats so much. She's perfectly healthy right now, but they all agree she needs to gain some of her old weight back."

Doctors believe she manages to survive at her extremely low weight because she expends so little energy. Her husband shops, cleans and does the cooking while 7-year-old Billy is out of the house in school all day so she doesn't wear herself out watching him.

"And I sleep a lot, too," she says. "I usually go to sleep about 7 at night and stay in bed till 10 or 11 in the morning."

But despite all this, the bony belle leads a reasonably normal life. She and her husband, 41, enjoy their backyard pool, go to the movies with friends and watch favorite TV shows together.
